THE NIAGARA BELT LINE

International Railway—Niagara Gorge Railroad

A S LIGHT is required to bring out the colors of the rainbow so is a trip around the Niagara Belt Line necessary to bring out the true beauties and grandeur of the American and Horseshoe Falls, the great Whirlpool Rapids, the wonderful Gorge, and the magnificent scenery that has made Niagara world-famous. Before the great lines of electric traction were established at the Falls it was impossible to gain access to the many points of interest now reached with ease by the wonderful trolley system now encircling the Gorge which, for a distance of over twenty miles, continually presents to the tourist an everchanging panorama of wonderful scenery. The scenic tour arranged by the International Railway, which company has the electric line along the Canadian side of the river, and the great bridges at Niagara Falls and Queenston, and the Niagara Gorge Railroad, or Great Gorge Route, which follows through the Niagara canyon from Lewiston to the Falls along the water's edge, enables the traveler to make this wonderful ride at Niagara without change of cars.

Belt Line cars pass through Falls and Second streets in Niagara Falls, N. Y., convenient to all principal hotels and railway depots, or the passenger may begin the trip at the new Terminal Station of the International Railway, fronting Prospect Park on Riverway, cars leaving at fifteen-minute intervals during the day.

Boarding one of these large observation cars, designated "Niagara Belt Line," the tourist is carried to the American approach of the great steel arch bridge spanning the Niagara River a few hundred feet below the Falls and over this remarkable structure to Canada. As the car slowly moves over the bridge, one of the grandest and most perfect views of the Falls is gradually unfolded, and in its course for nearly one mile up the river on the Canadian side this magnificent view of the American and Horseshoe Falls is ever present to the eye, always from a new point of vantage, until the car reaches Table Rock, almost at the brink of the Horseshoe Fall. Here the tourist may remain, if he so desires, continuing his journey on some later car. From this point may also be seen the Canadian rapids, above the Falls, and the wild and plunging waters in the mad rush before leaping into the chasm.

The Canadian electrical power plants are located here, affording many interesting and instructive features. At Table Rock the car describes a loop and returns down the Canadian side of the river toward Queens-
... the brink of the
... a distance of nine miles,
... within plain view of the
... and Gorge. On approaching the great railway bridges, about two miles distant from the Falls, the placid waters of the lower river once more become turbulent until the wonderful Whirlpool Rapids is reached.
Continuing along the high bank a splendid view of the great Whirlpool is obtained, and the course of the river at this point taking an abrupt turn, the Gorge and the river on its way to Lake Ontario may be seen for several miles. Continuing on and approaching Queenston Heights, a turn in the route suddenly reveals the magnificent panorama of the lower Niagara River and the surrounding country for miles to Lake Ontario. This fertile plateau, stretching for many miles along the south shore of the lake, is one of the most productive fruit regions in America.

At Queenston Heights the visitor may see the great monument, 200 feet high, erected to the memory of the famous British General, Sir Isaac Brock, who fell in battle on these Heights in the War of 1812. A gradual and easy descent from the Heights brings the car to the approach of the Lewiston Suspension Bridge. Along the way and within a few feet of the railway may be seen the cenotaph erected by the present King of England on his visit to this country in 1860, and which marks the spot where General Brock fell. Here is the village of Queenston, with Lewiston across the river, these being the head of navigation of the lower Niagara River and the ports of call for steamers of the Niagara River Line to Toronto. Crossing the Suspension Bridge, the car proceeds to the town of Lewiston, where a short stay may be made to advantage. Here the return trip to Niagara Falls is commenced, over the Great Gorge Route, running close to the water's edge nearly all the way. This ride up the Gorge is so wonderful in its scenic features as to defy description, the car passing on amid scenes of imposing grandeur by a winding course following the contour of the river bank. A short time after leaving Lewiston the Devil's Hole is passed. This spot is prominent in the annals of Niagara Frontier history, a British caravan and a company of soldiers being ambushed and massacred by the Indians in 1763, the entire company being driven over the cliff to death on the rocks below.

On the way up the Gorge a closer view of the great Whirlpool is had from the car, and at a turn in the river the Whirlpool Rapids suddenly looms into view, churning, foaming, and tossing, and forming a scene that holds the tourist spellbound with amazement, admiration, and awe. The Whirlpool Rapids is one of the most striking spectacles of the visit to Niagara. After leaving the Rapids and passing the great railway bridges the car begins an easy ascent along the river bank, and here the river and all its beauties sink into restful dimness. Nearing the top a mass of natural stone formation is passed and once more the visitor is within the city of Niagara Falls and ready to alight at the railway station from which the journey was begun, after a ride unequalled by any scenic tour in the world.

The cars making this delightful journey leave the terminal station every fifteen minutes, and the fare for the entire ride is but one dollar, including privilege of stop-over at any and all points. The trip around this scenic belt line should be made to consume an entire day, although, by continuous journey, it may be made in two hours' time.

New York State Reservation at Niagara
